“Meaningful Dialogue” is a frank conversation about the tough issues.

for

Teams Committed to Higher Performance

Conversations that leave things unsaid, are unclear and don't achieve their purpose are the biggest contributing factors to poor execution and lack of accountability. “Meaningful Dialogue” enables your team to confront the gap between behaviors and intentions to solve their own problems, reveal best ideas, increase action, improve buy-in and ability to act and advance results.

Families working in Business Together

As you face the inherent competing agendas within family and business; understanding and skill at the emotional intersections is vital to health and success. You can have a family business and a happy family at the same time.

Mothers and Daughters

The experience of being heard, seen and understood in critical moments between mothers and daughters is the foundation to find the balance between enmeshment and rejection. It's the kind of communication that enables poise instead of conflict, compassion as opposed to criticism and clarity in place of confusion.
